On that Thanksgiving, November 25, 1965, the 18-year-old Guthrie and his friend Rick Robbins, 19, were arrested by Stockbridge police officer "Obie" for illegally dumping some of Alice's garbage after discovering that the town dump was closed for the holiday. Two days later they pleaded guilty in court before a blind judge, James E. Hannon; the song describes to ironic effect the arresting officer's frustration at the judge being unable to see the "27 8-by-10 color glossy pictures with the circles and arrows and a paragraph on the back of each one explaining what each one was to be used as evidence against us". In the end, Guthrie and Robbins were fined $50 and told to pick up their garbage.

In the Song, "Alice" was restaurant owner Alice M. Brock. Formally known as the "Back Room Rest" Alice's was roughly six miles from the church and true to the song, it was "just a half-a-mile from the railroad track".

Owned by Alice for only a year, it is now known as "Theresa's Stockbridge Café, Formerly Alice's Restaurant".
